Yom Senegor

Yom Senegor served as Executive Vice President, Chief Information Officer and, most recently, as Head of Corporate Strategy for Safeco Insurance for five years. In this role, he led the company's Information Technology (IT) organization and directed corporate strategy initiatives.

Senegor joined Safeco in 2001 as a member of the team that engineered the company's turnaround. Technology played a key role in that transformation. Under his leadership, the IT team built a unified sales-and-service technology platform and developed processes to drive ongoing operational efficiencies.

Prior to Safeco, Senegor held a number of senior positions at the international consulting firm Accenture (formerly known as Andersen Consulting). There he helped some of the nation's largest insurance companies develop automated underwriting capabilities and integrated computing systems. His last position at Accenture was Central Region Managing Partner for Insurance and Chicago Office Managing Partner, where his responsibilities included leading a team of more than 30 partners and associate partners in providing consulting services to major insurance companies. He has extensive experience in the design and implementation of business solutions using state-of-the-art technology.

Senegor graduated from the Illinois Institute of Technology in 1981 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Computer Science.
